

Rachael Davis' Biography

Rachael was born and raised in Sacramento and currently lives with her husband, their one-year old son, and two dogs in Greenhaven. She attended California State University, Sacramento and is a trained opera singer. Rachael's state career began in January of 2018 at the Department of Social Services, where she provided administrative assistance to seven offices across California, as well as led a group of creative and enthusiastic employees to plan and carry out events and projects, promoting a fun and healthy work environment.

Rachael is the personnel liaison for the Office of Health Equity, working toward building a strong and cohesive relationship with CDPH's Human Resources Division to ensure personnel matters are handled timely and appropriately and to maintain compliant records. She is also the lead on facilities management, workforce development, and intern programs. Rachael is passionate about administrative work and the well-being of the public she serves. She is thrilled to be a part of the public health team, ensuring that all of California's diverse communities are healthy and supported.

Rachael plans to continue her career working with people who genuinely care about these vulnerable populations and is thankful to be an integral part of the Business Operations Unit.
